

Privacy and Collection of Personal Information

As part of the Gas Terminal Project consultation process, Viva Energy may collect your personal information (such as name, email address, phone number and postcode) so we can respond to your queries, provide you with Project information and assist us to better develop the Gas Terminal Project. We may also keep a record of our engagement with you (such as the transcript of a live chat or email exchange) for reference and to support our reporting and regulatory requirements. We may provide information collected during the consultation process to the Government and regulators but will try and de-identify this information where possible. If you don't provide us with required information, it may prevent you from being able to participate in the consultation process and limit our engagement with you. Information about how we treat your personal information can be found in our Privacy Policy on the Viva Energy website. Privacy Policy also has details about our privacy complaint process and how to access and correct your information.
